What is eDockets?

Most Cash in Transit companies use a paper form to record business transactions, fill out how much money, stock, inventory or whatever you are transporting and who has ownership of it at the time.

The docket book was an old system where you would hand write the serial number, tracking number or consignment number, indicate the quantity you are carrying, and calculate the total amount so the recipient has a record of collection. Then, the courier and the customer would sign it.

Once the consignment was delivered, the docket would be signed for. This piece of paper was then posted back to the Head Office, or just sat in the courier's folder until required. Sometimes offices would require a copy, this would be scanned and emailed back to you.

The eDockets system is designed to meet everyone's needs with just a simple click of a button. Everything you need to do with a paper docket before has been converted into a digital format. No more time-consuming paper forms to fill out. No more wasted work hours spent on looking for documents that may have been lost or misfiled.

Using our eDockets app, you can have access to your consignment information from anywhere at anytime. Several users can view documents at the same time if needed, which improves productivity. Cloud-based files are easy to access, manage, and store - It's as easy as using the internet instead of going to a library to search for the information.

The process of using the application is extremely straightforward and user friendly. You don't need to be tech savy in the slightest to operate the system, all you need is a smartphone with a camera. From there, just follow the bouncing ball!
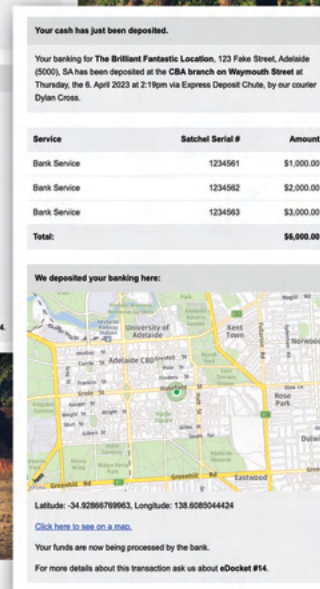

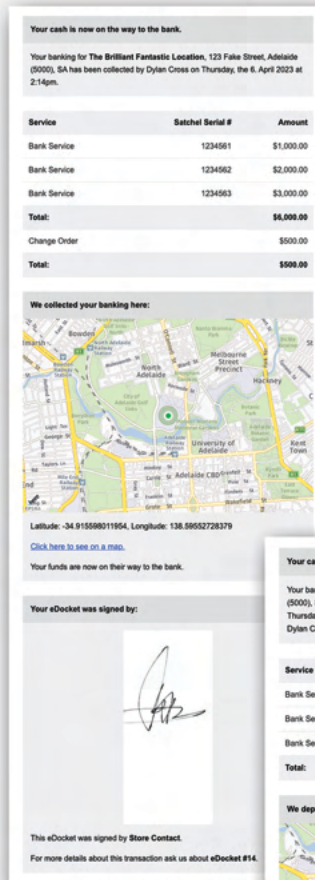

The collection process is as easy as selecting the client's locations, scanning their barcodes, entering the amounts contained and having the customer sign for verification.

The deposit is just as simple. Select the deposit location, scan out each barcode - this makes sure nothing is forgotten - and it will automatically confirm.

Upon completion of both the Collection and Deposit, live GPS tagged notification emails are sent to all parties, providing confirmation the job is completed and giving the client piece of mind.
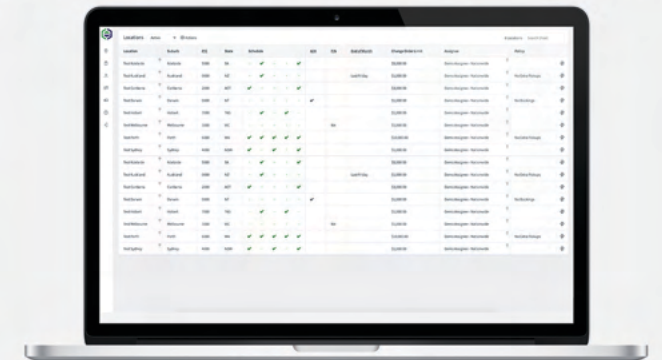

The Online Services Portal is your customer's one stop for managing their services by; booking collections, cancelling scheduled collections and ordering Change in specified denominations.

A Head Office is able to monitor and look after all their locations from anywhere in the world.

As for your business, this will be your new heartbeat and it works as your company's complete centralised database, with all locations, schedules, employees, contacts and even contractors listed at the tip of your fingers.

Not to mention every single transaction, from any point of time can be accessed within seconds!

Gone with the room containing the endless paper!
